In early February 1955, the following information was obtained on road bridges over the Neuse River:

25X1

1. The highway bridge at Goerlitz is serviceable and guarded by Soviet sentries who let only Soviet vehicles cross the border.¹
2. The highway bridge at Muskau has been planked for concreting work which is yet completed.²
3. It was rumored [] that the highway bridge over the Neisse River east of Forst, the middle section of which was demolished at the end of the war, is to be repaired after the completion of the highway bridge near Muskau. Preparations for this work have not yet been observed.³

3. Comment. The reconstruction of the highway bridge over the Neisse River near 25X Forst appears credible because the Soviets are greatly interested in the reconstruction of all bridges over the Oder and Neisse Rivers. The bridges involved are being reconstructed by the Poles. All major bridges along the Oder-Neisse line are scheduled to be reconstructed by late 1955.
